Against a backdrop of gorgeous aerial photography of Texas landscapes by Justin Moore, TPWD Executive Director Carter Smith will highlight our legacy of conserved lands, as well as opportunities and threats.

Dr. Roel Lopez, Director of the TAMU Natural Resources Institute, will present the economic impact of rapid urban growth and shrinking farm and ranchland in the Texas Hill Country.

Dr. George Perry, Dean of the UTSA College of Sciences will introduce this timely and provocative topic that affects all Texans.

ABOUT THE SERIES:

The inaugural lecture honoring the late H.W. "Bill" Lende, an avid conservationist committed to environmental research, starts the annual lecture series that will touch on regionally relevant topics in the areas of Natural Resource Conservation, Wildlife Research & Protection, Children in Nature, Preservation of Rural Heritage and Ranchland Issues.
