A dark night sky full of big bright stars is important here in the Hill Country, just like clean rivers, scenic vistas and natural landscapes. Little by little, light-by-light, the magical mystery of the big Texas night sky is diminishing. But it's not too late to reverse this trend. You can help!

- Matt Lara of the Hill Country Alliance will deliver a presentation on light pollution and the importance of the starry night sky to the Hill Country.
- Learn Money Saving Tips - what you can do to "fix" wasteful outdoor lights at your home, ranch, neighborhood and community
- Sports fields, commercial buildings, schools can all be safely and effectively lit in ways that reduce light pollution – find out how
